Sounds good, I had another call with the Col. He was inquiring about joining any scheduled planning meetings. The IPC does not have a set meeting rotation but if/when it is approved I will introduce him to Darwin and the planning group. This will best facilitate the needs analysis of what CAF could bring to the table and the tasks which will be the best fit for their involvement.

I got the impression from our call this morning that his superiors want him to be more forward leaning and get engaged with the police planning elements.

Question: Am I cleared to bring him into the IPC and have him start to engage with Darwin? Darwin is at the stage where he is beginning the tactical component of the public order plan, this would be excellent timing to involve CAF in planning so we have an idea from the outset on what other options/ideas can be brought into play with their assistance.

Hi Dave

Good call with CDS. Nothing really new, discussed moving RCMP personnel, assets et al. Discussed tow trucks, but really no commitment.

Noticeable reticence about the CAF playing a public facing role – even guarding sites after the police sweep through.

Keep contacts with the Col to determine next steps

Sorry Sir, I just saw this.

1530 Spoke with Col Ratte. It was a short introductory call. 5 minutes in duration. He advised that his boss had filed him in on their potential engagement. I said we should meet/discuss the operational components that I thought CAF could assist I mentioned specifically logistics, air support to move RCMP personnel if required as examples.

He said CAF was open to assist where they could. He advised that his boss had told him that the RCMP had a solid plan and that they would be there to help where needed.

We agreed to a follow up call. Most likely today but not in the morning as Col Ratte had some priority meetings and tasks to complete for his boss in the morning.

Hi Dave

Can you give me a summary of your call yesterday with CAF?

Just some bullets as to who you spoke to, about what, challenges and plans for future calls.

Thanks

Dennis
